JANUARY COURT WILL BE BRIEF

Criminal List will Likely be Disposed of in One Day while Few Civil Cases May be Heard. Two Expected to Plead Guilty.

January term of Court which opens on next Monday, January 25, promises to be of short duration, the lists of criminal and civil cases compiled by Clerk of the Courts Olinger and by Prothonotary Mehring indicating either prompt settlement or postponement of a number of matters.

In criminal court the two cases of forgery brought against Jesse Marks
by Jacob M. Mummert and A. F.
Roudebush, are listed for trial but it is said that Marks is considering entering pleas of guilty. Joseph Mc-Dannell, of near Virginia Mills, who was arrested some time ago by Constable Reese charged with selling liquor without a license, is also likely to plead guilty, it is said.

Strangers come in for their hearings before Adams County Court.
Mike Johnson on a charge of stealing coal at the McIlhenny warehouse and
C. Yonson on a charge of begging in Liberty township. The former arrest was made by Chief of Police Emmons;
the latter by Sheriff Thompson. The case against George Thompson, another itinerant, charged with begging, has been disposed of, Thompson being released on habeas corpus proceedings.

Howard Dill, arrested recently on a false pretense charge, brought by Mervin S. Kennedy, is listed for trial; as is Annie Sipe on a surety of the peace charge preferred by Harry C.
Albright.

Other cases are against Paul Krug,
Jesse Clyde Crist and Clyde Rider.
The case against Crist is likely to be postponed.

Continued cases listed for trial
next week are the following:

Com. vs Kamps Kister, charged with larceny as bailee, on oath of Harry Stevens. Continued from November term.

Com. vs Mary Weaver, charged with assault and battery on oath of Mary E. Weaver. Continued from August term.

Com. vs William T. Colehouse, charged with assault and battery on oath of Josephine Colehouse. Continued from November term.

In civil court it is said that the three cases brought by H. E. Rutter and J. P. Rutter, administrators of the estate of H. J. Weiler, deceased, against three insurance companies will be continued.

The case of Jacob Starner against the Western Maryland Railroad company has been settled. Other cases listed for trial, and continued from August term are the following:

E. W. Scurnick vs J. G. Stover.
Summons in action of trespass.

F. W. Kappes vs Edward A. Weaver, Agent for George W. Weikert, and George W. Weikert. Appeal from docket of Riley S. Harnish.

George W. Worley vs Reynolds
Weaver. Appeal from the docket of V.
H. Lilly.

INTO CONCRETE WALL

Damage Done to Canning Plant at Ortanna.

The one end of the plant of the Ortanna Canning Company was crumbled by a loaded freight car this morning when the Western Maryland local freight east was preparing to remove the car from the company's switch. The brakes refused to work, owing to the wet rails, it is said, and the engine pushed the car over a bank of earth and into the building which is of concrete. The wall fell in the path of the heavy car and the slate roof was considerably damaged. The work of removal proved to be a heavy task.

PAYS FOR CAKES TAKEN YEARS AGO

Five Cents Contributed to Conscience Fund. Mailed from Gettysburg to Former Manager of Alleman Hardware Company.

Eight years after that firm was succeeded by the Gettysburg Department Store, the L. M. Alleman Hardware Company has received a conscience fund donation of five cents. Mr. Alleman, now of Little-town, last week was surprised to get this communication:

Dear Sir:—
Enclosed kindly find five cents in stamps, which I think I owe you for some cakes which I believe I might have taken while you had the store here. My conscience began to prick me for fear that I might have taken a few cakes from your store; so I am obliged to return them or the value of them. I think it is safer to send stamps than money and I do not think it was more than five cents worth anyhow.

Hoping this will reach you safely and that you will pardon me, I remain,

Very respectfully,

The letter was signed with the writer's initials which are withheld.
Mr. Alleman was greatly pleased with the spirit which prompted the letter and stated this morning that, if he knew who had sent it, he most certainly would pay them a call to express his gratification.

Just what to do with the money
Mr. Alleman did not know, so he sent it to the Gettysburg Department Store. The management there stated that they did not take over the conscience fund as an asset when they acquired the other portions of the Alle-man business, and it was finally decided that charity should receive the benefit of the donor's troubled conscience.

SIXTEEN CONVERSIONS

Methodist and St. James Services Productive of Results.

The first week of the Methodist revival services came to a close Sunday evening with a total of eight conversions and twelve requests for prayer.
Miss Nettie Swartz, of New Oxford, will assist this week and Dr. A. S.
Fasick, district superintendent, is expected to be here Thursday, Friday and Sunday. The services yesterday were largely attended, and again the music featured.

St. James evangelistic week of prayer was concluded with Sunday evening's service. There were eight conversions during the week. The boys' quartet from Harrisburg sang a number of new revival songs, together with some of the old familiar hymns, their sweet voices and apparent feeling touching deeply the audiences which filled the church to capacity Saturday evening and Sunday.

Woman's Suffrage Question.

VALUABLE GIFT FOR SEMINARY

Large Canvas of The Last Supper
Presented to Local Institution.
Will be Placed in Chapel. Work of Famous Artist.

The Gettysburg Theological Seminary has received a valuable painting as the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C.
Miller, of Philadelphia. It is a notable copy of the famous painting, "The Last Supper" by Leonardo da Vinci.
The original hangs in the refectory of the convent of Santa Maria della Grazie, Milan. It was finished in 1498 and is a canvas 14 x 28 feet, the figures being more than life size. It was much impaired by neglect and by the violence of Napoleon's soldiers who nearly destroyed it in 1796.

The canvas which the Seminary has received is 6½ by 23 feet, the figures being life size. It is the work of Mr. James B. Sword, a noted portrait painter of Philadelphia who spent the better part of a year in painting it, using life models for the figures. The color scheme reproduces the original and is unusually rich.

Mr. Roland Sword, of Philadelphia, a son of the artist, was in Gettysburg over Sunday studying the placing of the valuable canvas. He is connected with the Rosenberg Galleries.

It has been decided to place the painting in the chancel of the Seminary Chapel which is now being prepared for the purpose. When in position on the walls it will be publicly unveiled, the date to be announced later.

MRS. H. JEROME WALTER

Funeral will be Held in Gettysburg on Wednesday.

Mrs. H. Jerome Walter died suddenly Sunday evening at the home of her son, Harry Walter, near Sugartown, aged 85 years, 8 months and 17 days.
She had been ill for only about a quarter of an hour, though about a month ago she had been taken suddenly sick in Gettysburg in much the same way.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Gabriel Meals, deceased, and was born near Bender's Church. For some years the family lived in Gettysburg and during her early life she married H. Jerome Walter who was engaged in coach making in Gettysburg for a long time. He died about ten years ago and four years later she went to the residence of her son who conducts a store at Sugartown.

She leaves four children, Mrs.
Israel S. Stonieser and William Walter, of Gettysburg; Mrs. Charles Eck-enrode, York; Harry Walter, Sugar-town.

Funeral Wednesday morning, meeting at the house. Services and interment at Gettysburg.

boys from the college here who confidently expect to more than turn the

THREE MEETINGS IN THE COUNTY

W. D. Reel Addresses Mass Meetings in New Oxford, Gettysburg and Biglerville. Urges Front Line Standard.

As the result of the visit of W. D.
Reel to Adams County, Saturday evening and Sunday, much impetus was given Sunday School work, and some tangible effects of his addresses are apparent.

The first of the series of meetings was held in the Lutheran church at New Oxford Saturday. It was well attended and an enthusiastic meeting.
Mr. Reel was here to urge the adoption of the Front Line Standard in the various schools of the county and, as a step to attaining this distinction, both Reformed and Lutheran schools in New Oxford decided after his talk Saturday evening to establish teacher training classes, which compose one of the requirements for enrollment under the advanced standard.

Sunday morning he made an address at the session of the College Lutheran School in Gettysburg, and in the afternoon addressed a largely attended meeting in St. James' Lutheran church. The boys' quartet, here for the evangelistic services, sang several times. Mr. Reel talked principally on the work of organized adult Bible classes in bringing men into the church and cited a number of examples and instances to demonstrate his point. The value of such classes in assisting church workers was made very clear.

In the evening Mr. Reel appeared in the Lutheran church at Biglerville and gave a talk on teacher training class and organized adult Bible class work. The meeting was well attended, considering unfavorable weather conditions, and included in the audience were representatives of schools outside of Biglerville who had come to hear the speaker, one of the best known in State Sunday School work.
There was special music and a devotional service conducted by Samuel A. Bream. After Mr. Reel's talk there was a conference on matters pertaining to his work.

This morning the speaker returned to Harrisburg to continue his activities elsewhere.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Elderly Man Badly Hurt in Fall Down Stairs.

Searching for a match with which to light the lamp on his bureau when it was time to get up Saturday morning, Cornelius Strayer, aged seventy-seven years, of near East Berlin, fell down a flight of steps and sustained a fracture of the right arm at the shoulder, and severe bruises over the body. He was found lying at the foot of the steps in an unconscious condition by members of the family of Calvin Deardorff, with whom he boards.
Dr. E. A. Miller, of East Berlin, was summoned to the Deardorff home and dressed Mr. Strayer's injuries. Mr.
Strayer is a retired farmer and has resided with the Deardorffs for some time past.

$5200 FOR REVIVAL

Biederwolf, Evangelist, to be Speaker at Hagerstown.

At a meeting in Hagerstown on Sunday of the Biederwolf evangelistic committee, which plans to hold a big evangelistic meeting in that city, with W. E. Biederwolf, an evangelist of the Sunday type, as its speaker, $5,200 was pledged toward the support of the meeting. The committee had asked for $5,000. All churches of the city are not united in bringing Mr. Biederwolf there. Biederwolf a year ago was at Chambersburg and held large meetings, resulting in hundreds of conversions.

Be Pretty! Turn
Cray Hair Dark

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy.

If there is one disease above others where medicines are futile and recovery depends upon leaving the body free to fight its own grim battle with death, it is tuberculosis. Good food, good air, sane wholesome living, and the specific which science and common sense alike have discovered.

Twist the Wire.

Pictures hung by a single wire have an annoying way of getting uneven, on account of the slipping of the wire on the picture hook. This can sometimes be avoided by first hanging the picture face to the wall and then turning it around. The single turn this makes in the wire near the hook prevents slipping.

Humility of Knowledge.

The ignorant imagine the learned, whom they have never seen, to be always talking in dark sentences and fine language; the simplicity and humility of real knowledge—of a Sir Isaac Newton—passes their understanding.—Catherine Stanley.

ALLIES AGAIN PUSH FORWARD

German Offensive at Soissons is Halted.

FRENCH WIN A VICTORY

Bombard Enemy's Works Along Coast and Destroy Rodan—Heavy Artillery Duels Near Ypres and La Bassee.

Paris, Jan. 18.—Germany's aggressive maneuvers in the Soissons section of the battle line have been brought to a complete halt by the reorganization of the French forces after their retirement to the south bank of the river Aisne, while French and British troops at other points of conflict have inflicted severe defeats on the Kaiser's forces.

After a spirited battle near the Belgian coast the French have driven the Germans from their positions along the "Great Dune" and have destroyed Rodan, to the north. The fortifications occupied by the invaders all along this portion of the fighting line have been bombarded as far as a point south of the village of St. Georges.

Near Ypres and on the Lens-La-Bassee front the British and French artillery has been engaged with the German gunners in sharp cannon duels.

A temporary defeat of the French at Blangy, in northern France, was speedily retrieved by a brilliant counter attack. A foundry captured by the invaders was retaken and the French held their lines intact.

German attacks were successfully repulsed near Troyon and in the forest of Le Pretre, which is northwest of Pont-a-Mousson.

The Paris war office statement says:

"We have continued to progress in the region of Nieuport and Lomme along a depression about 200 yards long. Our artillery forced the Germans to evacuate their trenches in the Great Dune, destroyed Rodan, which lies to the north of the latter, and bombarded the enemy's works in this part of the battle front and to the south of St. Georges.

"In the region of Ypres, as in that of La Bassee and Lens, there have been artillery engagements.

"At Blangy the action has been vigorous. The Germans seized the foundry at Blangy, which we soon retaken by an energetic counter attack. We have maintained our position at that point.

"In the section of Soissons there is nothing to report.

"Between Vailly and Craonne the enemy delivered without success an attack near the sugar refinery of Troyon and another against our trenches at Beaulme, both of which were repulsed. In the region of Perthes and Beaunejour our progress continues in spite of a violent storm.

"In the Argonne, on the heights of the Meuse, there is nothing new. In the woods of Le Pretre, near Pont-a-Mousson, a German attack has been repulsed.

"In the Vosges region we have gained ground to the west of Orbey. Snow fell in abundance all day."

British aviators have carried out a successful raid on the Kaiser's military positions at Ostend. Many bombs were dropped on the railway station and the barracks. Considerable damage was done. Nine British aviators took part in the attack.

Tension is becoming more severe in Italy. In spite of the attention being given to the earthquake victims, the war fever is growing.

According to a dispatch from Rome the Austrian and German consultations to be ready to leave Italy on short notice.

Berlin Asserts Big French Losses.

Berlin, Jan. 18.—An official statement issued in Berlin describes minor gains by the Germans at various points on the western battle line.

The statement also says there have been no important developments—be cause rain has hampered operations along the entire front. It is stated that, generally speaking, the position is unchanged in the east.

The statement asserts that the French lost heavily in their offensive movement which began in December. The assertion is made that the French lost 20,000 killed and 17,800 prisoners. In this period, including the number of sick and missing, the total French losses are estimated at 150,000, while the Germans lost less than 40,000.

No White Horses For Italy.

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 18.—The Italian government has signed contracts with a firm here for the delivery of 8000 war horses, it was announced. An inspector of the Italian army is in East St. Louis looking over the stock and another party of Italian army officers arrived today. The contract called for the delivery of 200 horses a day, none of which is to be white.

French Submarine Sunk.

ITALY'S DEATH ROLL GROWS

Casualties in the Abruzzi Alone Placed at 30,000.

FRESH SHOCKS ARE FELT

Terrific Force of Earthquake Cut a Mountain in Two—12,000 Bodies Still Buried at Avezzano.

Rome, Jan. 18.—Detailed reports received in the capital regarding Italy's stupendous earthquake disaster, increase rather than diminish the appalling list of dead and the enormous property loss.

The Messagero, after making a careful computation of all the figures it has been able to gather from the districts and villages hitherto isolated, announces that the number of dead and injured in the Abruzzi alone is 30,000, without including the Sora district.

San Atollio has 200 dead and 500 injured; Morina, 1500 dead; Canistro, 600 injured; Cervaro, 300 victims; Borgo, 50 dead, and Valleroteto, 1800 dead.

It is semi-officially estimated that there are still 12,000 bodies buried under the fallen walls of Avezzano. Rescuers believe that there are still many alive beneath the ruins, and heroic efforts are being made to rescue them. Eighteen persons were taken out alive after three days' imprisonment in the ruins.

Earthquake shocks still continue at Sora, and the authorities declare that there is not a single house in the town that is safe. Fully 1000 victims are buried in the debris, and the authorities declare slight shocks continue, causing destruction of unsafe walls in the districts where the earthquake did the greatest damage. No strong shocks have occurred anywhere, however, to make the disaster worse.

Frantic appeals for help have been received from Petrellaltri, 3500 feet above sea level on Mount Arango, eight miles from Tagliacozzo. The village was almost destroyed and the survivors say they are perishing of cold and hunger.

The terrific force of the earthquake cracked the mountains near Lucco. Huge pieces of rock, each of which weighed several tons, rolled down the hillside, burying the cottages of the peasants, killing cattle and obstructing the roads.

Mont Pizzideta, 6450 feet high, between Balziano and Roccaro, was cut into two parts by an immense fissure which is visible at a great distance.

The Duke of Abruzzi is continuing the distribution of relief in the earthquake zone. In many places he organized the rescue work and left without the survivors having any idea who he was. The government has appropriated $1,000,000 to relieve the suffering.

Severe winter weather has added to the misery of the survivors, many of whom are without shelter of any kind. Urgent appeals for food are coming from many places.

Some of the rescues are regarded as almost miraculous. At Avezzano one entire family, composed of the father and mother, three daughters and a son, were extricated alive from the ruins of their home.

Most of the dead at Otruchio are women and children who were buried under the ruins of a church which afterwards took fire from the small earthen braziers which the women there carry to keep themselves warm. Many of those buried were burned alive, despite frantic efforts made by the survivors to save them.

FIRE RUINS Y. M. C. A. GYM

Sunday Blaze in Allentown Does $25,000 Damage.

Allentown, Pa., Jan. 18.—Two hours before the place would have been crowded for the Sunday afternoon services fire broke out in the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian Association, in the heart of the city's business section, and before the blaze was controlled this part of the building was ruined.

A fire wall separating the auditorium from the main building saved the latter. The big gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. was ruined. The total loss is estimated at $25,000. Crossed electric light wires are believed to have caused the fire.

RUMANIAN RULERS.

King and Queen About to Enter War: Type of Soldiers.

Photos by American Press Association.

Further evidence that British shipping experts consider the entrance into the war of Rumania and Italy almost certain was shown by the insurance figures quoted by Lloyd's. For protection against Rumania declaring war on Austria within six months the almost prohibitive figure of 30 guineas per cent was asked. For protection against Italy declaring war against Austria within the same period 70 guineas per cent was asked.

RUSSIANS HOLD ROAD TO WARSAW

Von Hindenburg is Unable to Make Headway.

Petrograd, Jan. 18.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg has not succeeded in making any headway with his attack on the Russians holding the road to Warsaw, despite his vigorous attacks. To the north the Russians have reached points where they are seriously menacing the Germans attacking on the Bzura front. With the freezing of the lower Vistula the ice will afford them an easy passage over the river in Von Hindenburg's rear.

The Germans are using heavy artillery to a great extent to hammer the Russian lines, especially on the front before Warsaw. Further to the south the Austrians also are depending on their artillery to hold the Russians in check.

The fighting has been heavy on the Danajec river, where, if the Austrians fail to hold their present lines, the advance of the Russians will again threaten Cracow.

New Austro-German forces are reported to have been organized to repel the Russian invasion of Hungary, but the Russians hold the Carpathian passes and have placed their artillery there on the crests commanding the passage.

Any Austro-German force advancing in Hungary would be caught between the Russians operating south from Galicia and those which have swept through Bukovina.

DESTROY TURK ARMY CORPS

Moslem Force of 40,000 Annihilated, Says Petrograd Statement.

London, Jan. 18.—A Petrograd dispatch to the Central News says:

"An official communication says the Eleventh Turkish Army corps (40,000 men) has been exterminated near Kara-Urgan."

The Eleventh Turkish Army corps was sent from Erzerum to the relief of the broken Tenth corps, which was making a stand at Kara-Urgan.

Another official communication from Petrograd says:

"In the region of Kara-Urgan the fighting is developing with the advantage resting with our troops, by a bayonet attack we annihilated the Fifty-second Turkish regiment, the survivors of which, including the commander and several officers, were made prisoners."

"In one direction, where we were pursuing the defeated Turkish troops, we took more than 5000 prisoners, fourteen cannon, an enormous quantity of supplies and nearly 10,000 head of cattle."

SUNDAY PREACHES TO MEN

Nearly 50,000 Hear Him and Hundreds "Hit the Trail."

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—"Billy" Sunday ripped off his collar and tore open his shirt at the throat. He lashed out his coat and flung it behind him on the platform. His white shirt wringing wet, his nervous hands plunging every other moment into a pitcher filled with ice water, the evangelist hung with three fingers to the side of his pulpit and swooped, in great curves, over the platform's edge. His right arm worked like a pump handle; a triumphant smile was always on his face. He was grasping the hands of hundreds who, smarting under the lash of his sermon, "Chickens Come Home to Roost," were "hitting the trail."

Twice yesterday, afternoon and at night, that scene. Twice yesterday two mighty armies, men only, their total nearly 50,000, gazed, open-mouthed and open-eyed, at Sunday, the athlete. One moment, the evangelist flung them with his burning words. The next the athlete, smiling, working, plunging forward time and time again, like the sprinter breasting the tape.

Three times yesterday Sunday preached. Three times yesterday he called for converts. His morning's sermon, "Lord, Is It I?" won him 157 "trail hitters." Fully 500 responded in the evening. "Chickens Come Home to Roost," in the afternoon, won him 551. Nearly 70,000 persons heard him during the day. Thousands were turned away.

One congregation was hardly out of the tabernacle before another one had filled the immense building. Sunday got little rest and virtually nothing to eat. He started his sermons a half hour before the scheduled time. He simply dashed home after one, changing his wringing clothes, and rushed back for the next.

MEXICANS ELECT NEW PRESIDENT

General Garza Chosen Provisional Executive.

Mexico City, Jan. 18.—General Roque Gonzales Garza was named as provisional president of Mexico by the convention in session here over which he has presided.

The preceding provisional president, General Eulalio Gutierrez, together with Generals Blanco, Robles and Jose Vasconcelos, left Mexico City for Pachuca.

Martial law has been declared by General Garza and the city is being patrolled by mounted police.

In electing General Garza the convention declared itself to be supreme, and until a new president is elected has assumed all the legislative, executive and judicial powers.

General Garza was a member of the Villa-Carranza peace commission, which tried early in the summer of 1914 to arrange a settlement between the "first chief of the revolution" and his army commander. General Garza has been known as a "Villa man."

KILLS HIS FATHER

Angered at Treatment of Mother, Son Shoots Parent.

New York, Jan. 18.—Angered at the treatment of his mother, Vincent Carriello, twenty-one years old, shot and killed his father, Michael Carriello, in his home, at 577 President street, Brooklyn.

The house in which the shooting occurred is a tenement, and the report of the pistol threw the occupants into a panic. Young Carriello immediately after the shooting went to the Bergen street police station and surrendered himself to the police.

According to the story told by the boy, and which the police say was corroborated by other members of the family, the father had been abusing his mother continually.

Carriello threatened to strike his son, and the boy drew a revolver and fired five shots in quick succession. He was locked up on a charge of homicide.

WIFE ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

Husband Pulls Trigger and She is Wounded in Both Legs.

Reading, Pa., Jan. 18.—Mrs. Calvin A. Reeser was taken to the Homeopathic hospital, shot through both legs, the result, it is alleged, of her husband's handling a revolver he did not know was loaded.

The husband had purchased a box of cartridges and sent his wife upstairs to get the revolver to load it. When she handed him the weapon, supposing it empty, he pulled the trigger. The bullet entered his wife's right leg near the thigh, and passed through to the left thigh. The bullet was extracted at the hospital.

Find Her Dead Week Later.

Banor, Pa., Jan. 18.—Mrs. Susanna Frable, aged ninety-two years, lay dead on her doorstep in North Banor one week before her body was discovered by Floyd Johnson, a neighbor. A week ago Mrs. Frable attended the funeral of a son, who was killed in an accident in a Wind Gap slate quarry, and when her body was discovered the key was found in the doorlock just where the aged woman placed it on returning to her isolated home.

What Being Nervous Is.

The mental state of a person suffering from "nerves" is very much like that of a man who is wanted by the police, or who has just heard a rumor that the ship on which his wife and children have sailed has been sunk in a collision, or who has cried "fire" in a theater and been thrown out, and knows his name has been obtained by the reporters. Very often, says a writer in the Metropolitan Magazine, it is a combination of all three, with perhaps the added sensation of a man in doubt if he closed the safe before leaving the office.

Criticism of Nature.

Up here, where there is market for 'em, they don't grow wild. What nacher wants to do to help the workin' man is to have things grow wild where there's a market for them things."

PRESIDENT WILL REVIEW FLEET

To Sail For Panama on Battleship New York.

PASS CANAL ON THE OREGON

Arrival at San Francisco and Assembling of Fleet Scheduled For March 24—Many Foreign Vessels to Take Part in Celebration Incident to Opening of Waterway.

Plans for the journey of President Wilson to the isthmus of Panama and the use of the navy for the formal opening of the canal were announced by Josephus Daniels, the secretary of the navy.

Under these plans the proposed review of the Atlantic fleet at Hampton Roads about the 1st of March has been abandoned under a compromise reached with Senator Swanson of Virginia, who was insisting upon the holding of the Hampton Roads review as directed by congress. Senator Swanson had threatened to block any attempt to prevent by legislation doing away with the review. Under the compromise Secretary Daniels has given assurance that when the fleet returns from San Francisco there will be a substitute review held at Hampton Roads next fall to which foreign warships will be invited.

President Wilson will go to Panama on board the New York, which will be escorted by the Texas. The president is to leave Hampton Roads on March 5 and arrive at Colon on March 10. He will review the fleet off the west coast of the canal zone on March 13 and is scheduled to arrive at San Francisco on March 24. The plans contemplate assigning separate warships for the use of ex-presidents Taft and Roosevelt if they accept the invitations to participate in the opening. The diplomatic corps and members of congress will be conveyed to the canal zone on board army transports, Panama railway steamers and chartered steamers.

Daniels' Announcement. Secretary Daniels' announcement of the schedule of operations of the Atlantic fleet and preliminary arrangements for the cruise is as follows:

The battleships of the Atlantic fleet and the destroyer flotilla will proceed to Guantanamo and Guantanamo bay, Cuba, on Jan. 17 for extended fleet exercises and target practice, seven battleships participating in the maneuvers; the Georgia, Texas, South Carolina and Minnesota will remain at their home yards undergoing overhauling until Feb. 15.

The Texas will remain at Hampton Roads to escort the president to Panama in the New York, the New York proceeding to Hampton Roads from Cuban waters about Feb. 15, prepared to receive the president on March 5.

It is intended that the Washington relieve the Delaware in Mexican waters as soon as practicable and that the Delaware and Rhode Island will join the fleet in Cuban waters. The Rhode Island has been ordered from New Orleans to Norfolk for docking and on the completion of docking, about Jan. 22, will proceed to Guantanamo to join the fleet.

The battleships and the destroyers of the active flotilla about twenty-three will remain in Cuban waters, carrying on drills and exercises, until Feb. 25 and will then proceed to Panama, all twenty-one battleships going through the canal to San Francisco.

No Parade Through Canal. There can, of course, be no parade of the fleet as a whole through the canal. This would result in congestion in Colon and in the canal, with serious delay.

The Oregon and Olympia will take part and are to be in Colon prior to March 5 filled with coal and ready to proceed.

Besides the twenty-one battleships of the Atlantic fleet, all vessels of the Atlantic torpedo flotilla, including the Birmingham, Dixie and Arcturion, will accompany the fleet to San Francisco. The reserve torpedo flotilla, Atlantic fleet, will not proceed to San Francisco.

The reserve torpedo flotilla, the submarine flotilla, mine layers and auxiliaries will conduct exercises at Pensacola during the months of February, March and April. It is possible that the reserve torpedo flotilla will proceed to Guantanamo for exercises with the fleet before proceeding to Pensacola.

The following foreign vessels are expected to take part in the celebration incident to the opening of the canal:

Argentina will send the battleship Moreno, flying the flag of Vice Admiral Onofre Betbeder; Cuba will send the cruiser Cuba; Portugal will send the cruiser Almirante Reis and the dispatch boat Cinco de Outubro; Spain will send the battleship Espana. Vice Admiral Don Ramon Estrada Cateiva has been appointed by the Spanish government as its naval representative.

Poppies For Lincoln Way. When the stream of eastern tourists begins to pour into California next spring over the Lincoln highway they will pass for miles after miles between rows of California poppies, while the foothill boulevard leading into Oakland will be further beautified with a fringe of blue lupines, which will set off the brilliant yellow of the poppies.

Unlimited Payment. It seems that the man who owes a grudge wants to pay more than he owes, and wants to pay more than once.—William J. Burtscher.

The Submarine

Hid in a deep sea cave I lie
And drift the drift of the silent years,
And I laugh at the pride of human power
And the sorrow of human tears—

For I know I hold in my heart of fire
A strength to cruel and vast
I can blight the earth and air and sky
Like flame from the furnace blast.

When I slip along through peaceful seas
And peer with my Cyclops eye,
No state ship that ever was built,
Though never so fast she fly

Can race with me; I strike in the dark
Below her water line;
I am ruthless, cold as the sword in scabbard,
Like my brother, the floating mine.

Drenched with the salt sea brine I bide
The menace of the sea;
A grim, gray wolf, my fangs I hide,
And man is afraid of me!

FARM PRODUCTS OF 1914 ARE WORTH TEN BILLIONS

Astounding Figures Reported by Secretary of Agriculture.

American farms during the year 1914 eclipsed all records for combined value of their products, with a total of almost $10,000,000,000. Secretary Houston, of the department of agriculture, announced that the value of all farm crops, farm animal products and farm animals sold and slaughtered, aggregated $9,872,935,000. That was $83,000,000 more than the grand total for 1913, the previous record year, and more than double the value of all farm products in 1890.

Crops in 1914 were valued at $6,044,480,000, and the estimated total value of the animal products and of the farm animals sold and slaughtered was $3,828,455,000. The value of crop production last year was slightly less than in 1913 on account of the reduced value of the cotton crop brought about principally by the European war. The corn and wheat crops, however, were the most valuable ever produced in the United States, bringing the year's crop value total to only $88,279,000 less than the total for last year, despite the loss of more than $200,000,000 in the value of the cotton crop.

"The estimated value of the animal products of the farm in 1914," said the Agricultural Outlook, "is distinctly higher than in 1913, which was itself a record year in the value of this class of products. This is due to general but slight increases in production, except for sheep and swine, and in prices more especially to a small increase in the average price of eggs, and to a more considerable increase in the farm price of cattle and calves sold and slaughtered."

The values of the principal farm crops last year were: Corn, $1,702,509,000; wheat, $578,689,000; hay, $779,083,000; cotton, $549,616,000; oats, $243,431,000; potatoes, $198,979,000; barley, $195,963,000; tobacco, $191,411,000; sweet potatoes, $41,204,000; rye, $37,018,000; sugar beets, $27,550,000; rice, $21,840,000; flaxseed, $19,540,000; and buckwheat, $12,822,000.

PLAN A LAWYERLESS COURT.

Chicago Has Scheme to Reduce the Cost of Suing.

A court of convenience, where the people may plead their own cases, has been established in Chicago as a branch of the municipal court. Chief Justice Harry Olson announced. Its aim will be to simplify justice and reduce the cost of "going to law."

"No lawyers will be needed to obtain justice," Judge Olson said. "The complainant will present his own case, and the defendant will voice his own defense."

"Technicalities will be eliminated from decisions, and much injustice may be averted."

The court will at first consider cases in which amounts less than $50 are involved. Later its scope will be broadened.

STYLES MAKE FOR IDLENESS.

Capricious Women Blamed in Part For Unemployment Problem.

Speakers at the sessions of the national conference on the unemployed in Philadelphia made these among other suggestions as to ways by which workers could have steady employment:

American women should help to provide steady employment for thousands of workers by being less insistent in demanding ever changing styles. Miss Juliet Stuart Poynter of Boston, the speaker, said that caprice on the part of women who refused to wear last year's dresses and hats made it impossible for manufacturers to provide steady employment for their workers, because they never knew what to make until the last minute.

NOW FISHING FOR CATS.

This Is the Latest Municipal Industry in Atlantic City.

There have been so many cat operas and back fence serenades in Atlantic City, N. J., of late that peaceful slumber is next to impossible.

The city fathers have decided in consequence to war on toms and tabbies and fish peddlers have been ordered to the front. These peddlers will be about the streets wailing, "Fresh fish, fresh fish!" and the cats are expected to appear, leap on the peddler carts and have nets thrown over them.

The cat catchers will get 50 cents for every tom and tabby brought to the pound.

RELATES TERRORS OF THE ANTARCTIC

Sir Douglas Mawson Tells of Thrilling Escapes.

TWO COMPANIONS KILLED.

Explorer, Starving, Tempted to Eat One of Them—Unconscious For Hours, Wakes Up In Snowdrift, Lived Thirty-nine Days on Single Dog—Thought of Suicide.

How it feels to contemplate eating a human being and that human being a companion with whom one has been intimately associated in dangerous exploring work for months was told when Sir Douglas Mawson arrived in New York from Liverpool on the Orduña of the Cunard line. Sir Douglas plans to deliver a short series of lectures before the leading American geographical societies and then return to Australia preparatory to making another expedition into the antarctic.

Sir Douglas and two companions set out from their base in Amelie Land, 1912 to make an exploration of the geographical and archaeological features of the South American polar continent. Sir Douglas was accompanied by a British naval officer, Lieutenant B. S. Ninnies, and the Swiss ski champion, Dr. N. Merz. Sir Douglas alone survived.

"We turned homeward just at the best season of the year, but that blessed antarctic couldn't give us a single good day," said Sir Douglas. "Things began to look black."

"One day Merz went ahead exploring, and Ninnies and I had charge of the sleds. I was in the lead, and suddenly, almost before I knew it, I found myself traveling across one of the antarctic crevasses. We had crossed hundreds of them, and this one did not look particularly dangerous. But a crevasse is a place where the snow has formed a natural bridge over a great rent or hole in the ice surface, and they are always dangerous, so I called out to Ninnies, 'Crevasse; look out!' and kept on my way. I didn't hear anything behind, and I didn't look back for some time. When I did I saw nothing. Ninnies had disappeared."

Falls to Death.

"We made out afterward that while I had crossed the crevasse diagonally, Ninnies, on hearing my warning, had changed his course so as to go straight across. The crust of snow broke, and he went to his death."

"About Jan. 4 Merz began to refuse his food. It disgusted him, he said. He must have had a perforation of the intestine, for he died very suddenly on the morning of Jan. 8."

"I thought for two days about eating Merz. I was awfully short of food and about 100 miles away from the base. But finally I decided that if I did get back to civilization it would always leave a bad taste in my mouth, so I buried him and went on."

"I was dragging the sled with the cooking things and the remains of Ginger, the dog. A couple of days later my feet felt very sore. I hadn't looked at them in some time, so I crawled in under a ledge and lit a fire to see what was the matter. When I took off my shoes the soles of my feet came off with them in two large pieces. There was nothing else to do, so I slapped them back on again and banded them and went on my way in agony."

"It was just two years ago, Jan. 13, 1913, that I had my narrowest escape. I was walking along, dragging the sled, when I crashed through a crevasse. 'It's all over now,' I thought to myself. 'Why in heaven's name didn't I eat the last of that grub on the sled?' And just then I brought up with an awful wrench. The heavy sled stuck at the top of the crevasse. I hung there and spun around in midair like a spider in his web."

Thought of Ending It All.

"For awhile I thought of slipping the harness and ending it all, and then I thought that I wasn't meant to end there. I had so much good luck to get even that far that I decided to try to go to the finish. I climbed up the rope and over hand laboriously till I got to the top and threw one leg up on the solid ice. At least it seemed solid, but when I threw my leg on it the crust broke again, and again I dropped and spun around and around on the end of my rope. But I climbed up again and got out."

"After I got to the top I must have been unconscious for some hours. There was a blinding snowstorm raging, and the next thing that I remember I woke up in a snowdrift, covered inches deep in snow."

"For thirty-one days I was all alone on the ice. I had no shoes on my feet; all my hair had fallen out. For thirty-nine days I had lived on a single dog, and eight of those days there was another man living on the same dog. But at last I got to the hut at my base. Just in time to see the Aurora leaving the harbor, and I had just intelligence enough left to know that there was no possibility that she would be back for twelve months. That was Feb. 9, 1913. The Aurora had sailed for Port Stanley, in the Falkland Islands. But she had left a search party of six men, so that I was in good hands."

"In that year the seven of us ate over 7,000 penguin eggs, boiled, scrambled, poached and omelets. Omelets were our favorite way of cooking the eggs, for we had plenty of butter."

England's Oldest Port. Falmouth is probably the oldest port in England. It was used by the Phoenicians at least twenty-five hundred years ago.

Charles Raffensperger, Guy Plank, Earl Trostel, Walter Dentler, Roy Heckenluber, George Bigham, D. C. Jacobs and Robert Allison.

Modern Mercenary.

"You should think of our illustrious ancestors who steered this ship of the republic through the troubled waters—" "I'm kind of losing respect for my illustrious ancestors," interrupted Senator Sorghum. "Too many of them were inclined to boast that they left politics poorer than they were when they accepted office."—Washington Star.

Warm Baths for Your Nerves.

A bath at a temperature of 92 to 96 degrees will quiet the nerves in a magical way, even in cases in which drugs of all sorts utterly fail. Such a bath is called a neutral bath, because no action is produced by it and no disturbance results from overheating. Its temperature is just enough lower than the body's to carry off the surplus heat without producing a cooling effect.

Treatment for Sprained Ankle.

A sprained ankle should be immersed in water as hot as the person can bear. Keep it at this temperature for about an hour and a half, renewing the water as fast as it cools. Then put on a bandage tight enough to prevent any movement of the joint. The recovery depends upon the absolute prevention of any motion.

UNSEEN COMPANIONS.

Familiars That Are Born and Dwell In Our Imaginations.

Real men and women are not the only people. Our minds are inhabited as truly as any other country. Every child has his invisible playmate, to whom he talks more freely than to his parents and with whom he goes upon strange adventures—a tiny Columbus, with whom he embarks upon the waters of the bathtub to discover a new land, or a roving De Soto, with whom he slips through the garden gate untended and unafraid, always before he is three years old, bent upon an excursion into the wilderness which lies across the brook in the field or in the woods.

If you are the father or mother of this child you never can understand that—how the timid baby who was never before out of your sight could have gone so far alone. Why, when you found him, stained with his travels, very tired, almost nodding, he was still confident, preoccupied and bent upon a further pilgrimage into the unknown. It is because he was not alone. He was accompanied by an other whom he knows better than he will ever know father or mother, one of those companions of his own fancy, about whom he never tells you or any one else.

These people grow up like other people. The little child has his familiar, and the young man his "ideal," always a woman—not the one he marries nor even the one he might have married, but one whom he never saw in the flesh, a veiled and inscrutable presence who never forsakes him. And when he grows old and the wife he did marry grows old she remains young, fairer than the lilies, sweeter than honey upon the leaves in June.—Cora Harris in Harper's Magazine.

Romance.

They were at a tea on Morningside—she extremely pretty and engaging despite the fact that she was in Teachers' college and he an earnest student of the law. They had really gone quite far along the pleasant road of romance. He inquired civilly what degree she pursued.

"I aspire to an M. R. S.," she replied demurely.

"I dare say it's hard," he answered absently. Hours afterward under the green shaded light in his own room it all came to him suddenly.—New York Post.

A Composite Church.

While there are many beautiful churches, it is an old saying that the choir of Beauvais, the nave of Amiens, the portal of Rheims and the towers of Chartres would together make the loveliest church in the world. The glass in the great windows of nave and transept at Rheims was one of its greatest charms. Almost all of it was made at the time when such work was most beautiful.

Easy & Practical Home Dress Making Lessons

Prepared Especially For This Newspaper by Pictorial Review

OF INTEREST TO YOUNG WOMEN.

As regards the question of formal frocks for young women, it looks very much as though the basque bodices and full, circular skirts will lead the styles. This charming creation may be inexpensively carried out in white chiffon and lace, with just a dash of color at the neck and wrists.

The dress requires 3½ yards 36-inch lining and 4½ yards of chiffon. One and one-quarter yard of 40-inch lace will be sufficient for the yoke and sleeves. In connection with the touch of collar, fringe or narrow fur may be used.

After the lining is made and fitted (a lining will not be necessary for the skirt, if heavier material than chiffon is used), make the sleeves. First close the seams, matching the notches; then turn under extension on slot perforations and lap to small "v" perforations. Sew in arm-hole without fullness.

Now join skirt gores as notched and close back seams, leaving edges free.

Form inverted pleat, creasing on slot perforations, bring folded edge to center-back seam and press.

Close back seam of tunic from large "O" perforation to lower edge; finish edges above placket. Gather upper edge between double "TT" perforations. Turn under lower edge 3 inches for hem. Arrange on skirt, centers even; stitch upper edges together. Sew to lower edge of waist over belt, centers even.

For the bodice, close right side seam as notched. Gather between double "TT" perforations. Adjust tape the length of stay underneath gathers, notches even, arrange on lining, centers even; bring edge 1 inch above double "oo" perforations.

If the design is desired for practical wear, it may be developed entirely in crepe de Chine, taffeta or French cashmere.

Pictorial Review pattern No. 5973. Sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years and 32, 34 and 36 inches bust. Price, 15 cents.

BANANA DESSERTS.

BANANAS make convenient winter desserts. They are easily prepared and delicious. The addition of lemon juice, oranges, grape fruit or the fruit flavors from canned fruits make it possible to vary the desserts to suit the taste.

These Are Tart.

Lemon Bananas.—Take four large, ripe bananas, slice in a glass dish and squeeze the juice of a lemon over them. Then add one gill of water and a half cupful of sugar. Let stand half an hour in a cold place before serving.

Sliced Bananas With Cranberries.—Take two bananas, one cupful strained cranberries, one-fourth cupful sugar and one cupful of water. Boil sugar and water for five minutes, add cranberries, remove from the fire and cool. Skin, scrape and slice the bananas into ice cream glasses or a glass bowl and strain the cranberries over top.

Bananas and Grapefruit.—Slice and chill bananas. Then place in tall glasses, cover thickly with powdered sugar and pour over them the juice of grapefruit. Let them stand an hour or more before serving if possible. No cream or lemon will be required with this dessert.

Flavored With Fruit Juice.

Banana Cream With Raspberry Sauce.—Peel and crush two large bananas, add two teaspoonfuls lemon juice and two-thirds cupful of powdered sugar. Beat thoroughly. Beat white of one egg until light and fluffy. Add one-third cupful of grated cocoa nut, fold in one-half pint of heavy cream beaten until stiff and serve cold.

To make the sauce, thicken one cupful of raspberry juice with one teaspoonful arrowroot and sweeten to taste.

Bananas Filled With Cream.—Remove one section of the peel from as many bananas as are to be served. Take out the pulp and force through vegetable ricer. For six bananas allow one cupful powdered sugar, one cupful of thick cream, one-third cupful of sweet milk beaten together and one tablespoonful of lemon juice. Fill the banana skins and put on the section that was removed. Set the stuffed fruit in a tin pail, put on cover and pack in equal parts salt and ice. After being packed one and one-half hours they will be ready to serve.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Warrington, an American adventurer, and James, his servant, with a caged parrot, the bird known as Rajah, travel along the road to the landing, bound for Rangoon to cash a draft for $2,000 rupees.

CHAPTER II—Elsa Chetwood, rich American girl tourist, sees Warrington come aboard the boat at the landing and, amazed at his likeness to her fiancé, Arthur Ellison, asks the purser to introduce her. Conservative English passengers are shocked at her breach of the conventions.

CHAPTER III—The purser tells Elsa that Warrington, the outcast adventurer, has beaten a syndicate and sold his oil claims for $20,000. Warrington puts Rajah, the parrot, through his tricks for Elsa and warns her against acquaintance with unknown adventurers—himself, in fact.

CHAPTER IV—Warrington and Elsa pass two golden days together on the river. Martha, Elsa's companion, warns her that there is gossip.

CHAPTER V.

Back to Life.

The two days between Prom and Rangoon were distinctly memorable for the subtle changes wrought in the man and woman. Those graces of mind and manner which had once been the man's began to find expression. Physically, his voice became soft and mellow; his hands became full of em- phasis; his body grew less and less clumsy, more and more leanline. The blunt speech, the irritability in argu- ment, the stupid pauses, the painful study of cunning phrases, the suspi- cion and reticence that figuratively en- crust the hearts of shy and lonely men, these vanished under her warm if care- less glances.

If the crust of barbarism is thick that of civilization is thin enough. As Warrington went forward Elsa stopped and gradually went back, not far, but far enough to cause her to throw down the bars of reserve, to cease to guard her impulses against the invasion of interest and fascination. She faced the truth squarely. The man fascinated her. He was like a portrait with fol- lowing eyes. She spoke familiarly of her affairs (always omitting Arthur); she talked of her travels, of the fam- ous people she had met, of the won- derful pageants she had witnessed. It was not her fault, that with the ex- ception of Martha, who didn't count, they two were the only passengers. This condition of affairs was directly chargeable to fate; and before the boat reached Rangoon, Elsa was quite willing to let fate shift and set the scenes how it would.

The phase that escaped her entirely was this, that had he not progressed she would have retained her old pose, the old pose of which she was never again to be mistress. It is the old tale—sympathy to lift up another first steps down. And never had her sym- pathy gone out so quickly to any mortal. Elsa had a horror of loneliness, and this man seemed to be the living presentment of the word. What strug- gles, and how simply he recounted them! What things he had seen, what adventures had befallen him, what ro- mance and mystery! She wondered if there had been a woman in his life and if she had been the cause of his downfall. Every day of the past ten years lay open for her to admire or condemn, but beyond these ten years there was a Chinese wall, over which she might not look. Only once had she provoked the silent negative nod of his head. He was strong. Not the smallest corner of the veil was she permitted to turn aside. She walked hither and thither along the scarps and bastions of the barrier, but never found the breach.

"Will you come and dine with me to- night?" she asked, as they left the boat.

"No, Miss Innocence."

"That's silly. There isn't a soul I know here."

"But," gravely he replied, "there are many here who know me."

"Which infers that my invitation is unwise?"

"Absolutely unwise. Frankly, I ought not to be seen with you."

"Why? Unless, indeed, you have not told me the truth. Where's the harm?"

"For myself, none. On the boat it did not matter so much. It was a situa- tion which neither of us could foresee nor prevent. I have told you that people here look askance at me be- cause they know nothing about me, save that I came from the States. And they are wise. I should be a cad if I accepted your invitation to dinner."

"Then I am not to see you again?"

The smile would have lured him across three continents. "Tomorrow I promise to call and have tea with you, much against my better judgment."

"Oh, if you don't want to come . . ."

"Don't want to come!"

Something in his eyes caused Elsa to speak hurriedly. "Good-by until to- morrow."

She gave him her hand for a mo- ment, stepped into the carriage, which already held Martha and the luggage, and then drove off to the Strand hotel.

He stood with his helmet in his hand. A fine, warm rain was falling, but he was not conscious of it. It seemed incredible that time should produce such a change within the space of seventy hours, a little more a little less. As she turned and waved a friendly hand he knew that the deso- lation which had been his for ten years was nothing as compared to that which

She Spoke Familiarly of Her Affairs (Always Omitting Arthur).

now fell upon his heart. She was as unattainable as the north star; and nothing, time nor circumstance, could bridge that incalculable distance. His heart hurt him. He must see her no more after the morrow. Enchantment and happiness were two words which fate had ruthlessly scratched from his book of days.

Mr. Hooghly had already started off toward the town, the kit bag and the valise slung across his shoulders, the parrot cage bobbing at his side. He knew where to go; an obscure lodging for men in the heart of the business section, known in jest by the derelicts as the Stranded.

Warrington, becoming suddenly aware that his pose, if prolonged, would become ridiculous, put on his helmet and proceeded to the Bank of Burma. Today was Wednesday; Thursday week he would sail for Singa- pore and close the chapter. Before banking hours were over his financial affairs were put in order, and he walked forth with two letters of credit and enough banknotes and gold to carry him around the world if he so planned. Next he visited a pawnshop and laid down a dozen mutilated tickets, receiving in return a hand- some watch, emerald cuff buttons, some stickpins, some pearls and a beautiful old ruby ring, a gift of the young maharajah of Udaipur. The an- cient Chinaman smiled. This was a rare occasion. Men generally went out of his dark and dingy shop and nevermore returned.

"Much money. Can do now?" affably.

"Can do," replied Warrington, slip- ping the treasures into a pocket. What a struggle it had been to hold them! Somehow or other he had always been able to meet the interest, though, often to accomplish this feat he had been forced to go without tobacco for weeks.

There is a vein of superstition in all of us, deny it how we will. Warring- ton was as certain of the fact as he was of the rising and the setting of the sun, that if he lost these heir- looms he never could go back to the old, familiar world, the world in which he had moved and lived and known happiness. Never again would he part with them. A hundred thousand dol- lars, almost; with his simple wants, he was now a rich man.

"Buy ling?" asked the Chinaman. He rolled a mandarin's ring carelessly across the showcase. "Gold; all heavy; velly old, velly good ling."

"What does it say?" asked Warring- ton, pointing to the characters.

"Good luck and piospeltity; velly good signs."

It was an unusually beautiful ring, unusual in that it had no setting of jade. Warrington offered three sov- ereigns for it. The Chinaman smiled and put the ring away. Warrington laughed and laid down five pieces of gold. The Chinaman swept them up in his lean, dry hands. And Warring- ton departed, wondering if she would accept such a token.

By four o'clock he arrived at the Chinese tailors in the Suley Pagoda road. He ordered a suit of pongee, to be done at noon the following day. He added to this orders for four other suits, to be finished within a week. Then he went to the shoemaker, to the hatter, to the haberdasher. All this business because he wanted her to realize what he had been and yet could be. Thus vanity sometimes works out a man's salvation. And it marked the end of Warrington's recidivism.

When he reached his lodging house he sought the Burmese landlady. She greeted him with a smile and a stiff little shake of the hand. He owed her money, but that was nothing. Had he not sent her drunken European sailorman husband about his busi- ness? Had he not freed her from a tyrannical of fists and curses? It had not affected her in the least to learn that her sailorman had been negli- gently married all the way from Yoko- hama to Colombo. She was free of him.

Warrington spread out a five-pound note and laid ten sovereigns upon it. "There we are," he said genially; "all paid up to date."

"You go 'way?" the smile leaving her pretty moon-face. "You like?" with a gesture which indicated the parlor and its contents. "Be boss? Half an hour?"

He shook his head soberly. She picked up the money and jingled it in her hand.

"Good-by!" softly.

"Oh, I'm not going until next Thurs- day."

The smile returned to her face, and her body bent in a kind of kotow. He was so big, and his beard glistened like the gold leaf on the Shwo Dagon pagoda. She understood. The white to the white and the brown to the brown; it was the law.

Warrington went up to his room. He was welcomed by a screech from the parrot and a dignified salaam from James, who was trimming the wick of the oil lamp. For the last year and a half this room had served as head- quarters. Many a financial puzzle had been pieced together within these dull, drab walls; many a dream had gone up to the ceiling, only to sink and dis- sipate like smoke. There were no pic- tures on the walls, no photographs. In one corner, on the floor, was a stack of dilapidated books. These were mostly old novels and tomes dealing with geological and mathematical mat- ters; laughter and tears and adventure, sandwiched in between the dry positiveness of straight lines and squares and circles and numerals with- out end; D'Artagnan hobnobbing with Euclid! Warrington was an educated man, but he was in no sense a scholar.

James applied a patch to the wick, and the general poverty of the room was instantly made manifest.

"Well, old sober-top, suppose we square up and part like good friends?"

"I am always the sahib's good friend."

"Right as rain!" Warrington emptied his pockets upon the table; silver and gold and paper. "Eh? That's the stuff. Without it the world's not worth a tinker's dam. Count out seventy pounds, James."

Calmly James took sovereign after sovereign until he had withdrawn the required sum. "Gold is heavy, sahib," he commented. "You go back home?"

"Yes. Something like home. I am going to Paris, where good people go when they die. I am good to drink vintage wines, eat truffles and mush- rooms and caviar and kiss the pretty girls in Maxim's. I've been in prison for ten years. I am free, free!"

Warrington flung out his arms. "Good-by, jungles, deserts, hell heat and thirsty winds! Good-by, crusts and rags and hunger! I am going to live."

"The sahib has fever," observed the unimaginative Eurasian.

"That's the word; fever. I am burn- ing up. Here; go to the Strand and get a bottle of champagne, and bring some ice. Buy a box of the best ci- gars, and hurry back. Then put this junk in the trunk. And d—n the smell of kerosene!"

James raised his hand warningly. From the adjoining room came the sound of a quarrel.

"Rupees one hundred and forty, and I want it now, you sneak!"

"But I told you I couldn't square up until the first of the month."

"You had no business to play poker."

Then, if you knew you couldn't settle."

"Who asked me to play?" shrieked the other. "You did. Well, I haven't got the money."

"You miserable little wretch! The ring is worth a hundred and forty."

"You'll never get your dirty fingers inside of that."

"Oh, I shan't, eh?"

Warrington heard a scuffling, which was presently followed by a low, chok- ing sob. He rushed fearlessly into the other room. Pinned to the wall was a young man with a weak, pale face. The other man presented nothing more than the back of his broad, mus- cular shoulders. The disparity in weight and height was sufficient to rouse Warrington's sense of fair play. Besides, he was in a rough mood him- self.

"Here, that'll do," he cried, seizing the heavier man by the collar. "It isn't worth while to kill a man for a handful of rupees. Let go, you fool!"

He used his strength. The man and his victim swung in a half-circle and crashed to the floor.

With a snarl and an oath the gam- bler sprang to his feet and started toward Warrington. He stopped short.

"Good God!" he murmured; and re- treated until he touched the footboard of the bed.

Natural Beginning.

When a woman has occasion to pol- ish the family silver the chances are she will begin with the small change in her husband's pockets.

"You go 'way?" the smile leaving her pretty moon-face. "You like?" with a gesture which indicated the parlor and its contents. "Be boss? Half an hour?"

He shook his head soberly. She picked up the money and jingled it in her hand.

These were mostly old novels and tomes dealing with geological and mathematical mat- ters; laughter and tears and adventure, sandwiched in between the dry positiveness of straight lines and squares and circles and numerals with- out end; D'Artagnan hobnobbing with Euclid! Warrington was an educated man, but he was in no sense a scholar.

James applied a patch to the wick, and the general poverty of the room was instantly made manifest.

"Well, old sober-top, suppose we square up and part like good friends?"

"I am always the sahib's good friend."

"Right as rain!" Warrington emptied his pockets upon the table; silver and gold and paper. "Eh? That's the stuff. Without it the world's not worth a tinker's dam. Count out seventy pounds, James."

Calmly James took sovereign after sovereign until he had withdrawn the required sum. "Gold is heavy, sahib," he commented. "You go back home?"

"Yes. Something like home. I am going to Paris, where good people go when they die. I am good to drink vintage wines, eat truffles and mush- rooms and caviar and kiss the pretty girls in Maxim's. I've been in prison for ten years. I am free, free!"

Warrington flung out his arms. "Good-by, jungles, deserts, hell heat and thirsty winds! Good-by, crusts and rags and hunger! I am going to live."

"The sahib has fever," observed the unimaginative Eurasian.

"That's the word; fever. I am burn- ing up. Here; go to the Strand and get a bottle of champagne, and bring some ice. Buy a box of the best ci- gars, and hurry back. Then put this junk in the trunk. And d—n the smell of kerosene!"

James raised his hand warningly. From the adjoining room came the sound of a quarrel.

"Rupees one hundred and forty, and I want it now, you sneak!"

"But I told you I couldn't square up until the first of the month."

End of the Locomotive.

When railroad locomotives have served their time of usefulness or are badly damaged through accidents they are ordinarily scrapped and disposed of as salvage. This at least is the practice followed by many of the com- panies which turn over their obsolete equipment of this kind to firms which cut the sides of the locomotive into torches. Castings, malleable iron and the different grades of metal are sepa- rated as the work proceeds.—Popular Mechanics.

Independence.

"Johnny," queried the teacher, "do you know the meaning of independ- ence?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered the little fellow. "It's when you don't owe no- body nothing and can look 'em in the eye and tell 'em to go to blazes."—Chi- cago News.

A Giver.

"Why did you give that $10 you owed me back before the entire com- pany?"

"So as to re-establish my credit with the others."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Victim of a Painless Ache.

An East side couple, accompanied by their four-year-old marvel, started for a motion picture show the other night. On the way the little boy said: "Oh, mamma, I've got a tummy ache." Mother then suggested that they should return home at once, without seeing the movie. The little fellow thought better of it. "My tummy aches," he amended, "but it doesn't hurt."—Kansas City Star.

"YOUNG OLD" MEN ORGANIZE CLUB

Won't Go Into Scrap Heap; Jobs For All.

MUST BE FORTY TO JOIN.

Average Age of Present Membership Is Sixty. Over Sixty Years—Oldest Member More Than Eighty and Youngest Forty-three—New Club Instituted in Springfield, O.

With "Help Your Fellow Man" for its motto and a desire to aid its needy members by giving them a better chance to earn a livelihood, Springfield, O., has a new organization in the Young Old Men's association, made up of 100 members, all gray haired, with an average age of a fraction more than sixty years.

The association is made up of men from all walks of life who have passed the period of youth. The intention of the organization is to find employment for those of its members who are able-bodied, but have been thrown out of work because of the increasing number of gray hairs that have appeared upon their heads.

Under the leadership of former Mayor and State Senator Francke W.
Dickinson the organization is beginning to get results. A workshop has been established in the business center of the city, where work can be sent to be done and where men needed for odd jobs can be obtained.

In the association are found men who have made their mark in professional and business life and have been overaken with old age and with little of this world's goods back of them.

It is estimated that about 25 per cent of the membership are men who are in need of work and are able to work.

How Idea Originated.

The association was started by George W. Crossett of Cleveland, O., a native of Springfield. He visited his old home this last fall and met many of his boyhood friends. Finding some of these friends out of work, he conceived the idea of promoting this organization.

An advertisement was placed in the local papers for gray haired men over forty years of age to meet in the city council rooms on a stated night. No explanation of the meeting was given, and when the time of the gathering came a large number of elderly men was on hand. After the object of the meeting had been explained the association was formed.

Headquarters of the association have been established, where social rooms are maintained. The only qualification for membership is that the applicant be over forty years of age, have gray hair and be an American citizen.
Religion and politics are barred as topics. No man is too poor to be el-ligible.

The membership embraces merchant, salesmen, farmers, physicians, undertakers, managers, messengers,
agents, manufacturers, store clerks,
janitors, caretakers, furniture workers, stockroom clerks, painters, carpenters, firemen, engineers, contractors, wood workers, gasfitters, gas goods dealers, shipping clerks, foremen, hostlers, machines, mechanics of all kinds and laborers. On the list are several under the heading of "retired."

The oldest member of the organization is over eighty and the youngest forty-three.

KITCHENER'S KINDNESS.

Sends Five Soldiers Home to See Their Dying Mother.

The London Chronicle says Lord Kitchener is so generally credited with an iron character devoid of sentiment in matters affecting his great purpose that the following story of his thoughtfulness is of special interest:

A Sunderland woman with five sons in the army lay dying. Her one desire was to see her boys again. Through the offices of a local Salvation Army officer four of the sons serving in England reached home within twenty-four hours, their expenses being paid by the authorities. The fifth son, however, was at the front, and there seemed little chance of the old woman's wish being fulfilled. But the Salvationist wired to the war office, and back came a reply over Lord Kitchener's signature saying that if the son could be found he would be sent home. Afterward came a wire to the man was on his way home, and eventually he landed in time to see his mother. The authorities had paid his expenses and gave him a seven days' furlough and ration money.

FOUR OF FAMILY PERISH IN FIRE

Father, Son and Two Daughters Victims of Flames.

UNCONSCIOUS BOY SAVED

Mother and Two Daughters Leap From Third Floor Into Policemen's Arms and Are Badly Injured.

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—Four of a family of eight persons were burned to death when fire swept through their apartments over a furniture store at 703 South street.

The mother and two of her daughters were severely injured when they were forced to leap three stories into the arms of policemen.

Those who perished were Fritz Le Vinsky, fifty-two years old, and two daughters and a son, ranging in age from four to fourteen years. His wife Bessie, forty-three years old, and two daughters, Ethel and Rose, eighteen and nineteen years old respectively, plunged from a third-story window as the flames began to envelop their clothing.

Although Mrs. LeVinsky's fall was broken by Policemen Stewart and Schenk, she received a fracture of both legs and such serious internal injuries that she is expected to die. Her two daughters were only slightly hurt, and a little son was carried out unconscious.

The fire started on the ground floor in the furniture store owned by Le Vinsky and quickly spread to the two floors above. Firemen declare that the intense heat must have awakened the family, as they had not even time to reach the stairway.

LeVinsky aided his wife and two eldest daughters to a front window from which they afterward leaped and then returned to assist his little children to the fire escape, when he was overcome by smoke. Their bodies were found side by side.

Policemen Stewart and Schenk were near when the flames and smoke burst from all parts of the building and after sounding an alarm of fire ran to the building to attempt to rescue those known to be sleeping above the store.

The policemen managed to rescue Willie, eight years old, and were fighting their way back into the blazing building, when they saw Mrs. LeVinsky and her two daughters appear at the front window.

The three, dazed with fright, obeyed the orders to remain where they were until tongues of flames forced them to choose death by fire or by what seemed inevitable death by leaping from the windows.

LeVinsky's fall was broken by Policemen Stewart and Schenk, she received a fracture of both legs and such serious internal injuries that she is expected to die.

The professor dug him up in an effort to disprove the claims of another scientist that worms have no intelligence.

Pete was given ten lessons a day wriggling on prepared paths. The right one led to a soft bed of wet blotting paper. The wrong one took him to a place where he got an electric shock. Pete finally learned which was the way to worm paradise. One thousand trips finally killed him.

These big guns, it was said, were consigned to Harlan & Wolf, in Belfast, Ireland. The name of the shipper could not be determined.

Harlan & Wolf are shipbuilders and the belief prevailed in maritime circles that the guns were destined for the turret of some new British dreadnought now building. Each of the weapons weighed 15,000 pounds and was 53 feet long.

Trap Wounded Young Slayer. Williamsport, Pa., Jan. 18.—Charles Phillips, aged thirty-two years, who shot and fatally wounded Emanuel T. Leib, aged seventy years, a Civil War veteran, and was himself wounded by Leib's son in a pistol duel, was captured near Pennsylvania, near Muncy. He was taken to Muncy and held on a charge of murder. He suffers much pain from the wound in his face.

Trunk Bank's $1180 Goes. Shenandoah, Pa., Jan. 18.—Peter Kardock, an East Center street boarder, drew $1180 from the bank to buy stock, but instead placed it in his trunk and confided the information to Adam Evansky, a fellow boarder. When Kardock arose from bed he discovered that the trunk had been broken open, the money gone and that Evansky had taken a train and fled.

MRS. FRANCIS B. SAYRE.
President's Daughter Is Mother of a Lusty Boy.

WHITE HOUSE BABY BORN TO MRS. SAYRE

President Overjoyed That the Child is a Boy.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A son was born at the White House to Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre, President Wilson's second daughter, who was Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson.

The child was born on Sunday afternoon and the fact was formally announced by Secretary Tamm in the following statement:

"Dr. Grayson, the White House physician, states that Mrs. Sayre gave birth to a fine boy. Everything went perfectly and both are doing well."

The newcomer at the White House weighed seven and a half pounds. There was evidence that the arrival of little Mr. Sayre in the White House was an event that had deeply stirred everybody in the historic mansion, from the president down.

For one thing, it was the first time that there had been a birth in the White House since the administration of President Cleveland, the last child born there being Esther Cleveland.

President Wilson didn't wait long after learning of the arrival of his grandson before paying his profound respects to him. The boy's aunts, Miss Margaret Wilson and Mrs. McAdoo, wife of the secretary of the treasury, also were there for a delighted glimpse of the first boy in their family for two generations.

A name has not been selected, but it is expected that the child will be named for his grandfather. The christening is expected to be held in the White House before the return of Mrs. Sayre to her home in Williams town, Mass. Congratulations poured into the White House.

HINTS FOR THE BUSY HOUSEWIFE

Towel Wringer That Is Easily Operated.

A simplified wringer has been recently designed principally for the purpose of wringing towels, but also adapted for other special purposes, though hardly available for general wash work, for the reason that it is entirely devoid of anything like a crank handle and cogwheels. Therefore its use must be restricted to sturdy material, such as towels, which are strong enough to be pulled through the rollers. The device is exceedingly simple in its construction, consisting mainly of two rollers mounted on a bracket. One roller is substantially secured to the bracket, while the lower one is mounted on a pivot and supplied with a handle, so that the lower roller may be constantly adjusted with its relationship to the other roller. The towel to be treated is drawn through the rollers, while a pressure is exerted on the handle and the two rollers thereby pressed together.

New England Corn Chowder.

Pare and dice four good sized potatoes, peel and slice two medium white skin onions and open one can corn pulp. Place in alternate layers in a saucepan, beginning with potato. Sprinkle delicately with salt, pepper and a pinch of minced celery leaf. Add one half pint boiling water, cover closely, simmer ten minutes. Blend one tablespoonful of butter and two of flour, add one pint of milk, stir until boiling, then turn into chowder. Mix without breaking potato cubes. When it begins to boil add six hard water crackers broken to bits. Cover kettle and keep hot five minutes. At the last moment stir in the yolk of an egg beaten in two tablespoonfuls of cream, turn into hot tureen and serve.

Kitchen Kinks.

If bacon is soaked in water for a few minutes before frying it will prevent the fat from running. When whipping cream beat slowly for the first two minutes and then very rapidly. When washing saucers be sure to lay them in front of the fire for five or ten minutes so that they may dry thoroughly inside and thus prevent deteriorating through getting rusty. After use all pudding cloths and jelly bags should be washed in very hot water and when they have been well rinsed hung up to dry where they are exposed to a good draft.

Steamed Indian Pudding.

Place in a double boiler a quart of milk, allow it to come to a boil and add a cupful of cornmeal gradually, stirring constantly. Boil for about half an hour, then add a cupful of molasses, half a cupful of brown sugar, a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of ginger, half a teaspoonful of cinnamon and two well beaten eggs. Stir until very smooth, then add half a cupful each of raisins and currants. Pour into a greased mold and steam three hours. Serve with whipped cream sweetened with maple sugar, or with a lemon sauce.

Cornmeal Scramble.

One pig's head split in halves, two cupfuls cornmeal, salt and sage. Cook the pork in water until the meat can be easily removed from the bone. Remove the meat, cool the broth and remove the fat. Reduce the broth to about two quarts or add water enough to bring it up to this amount and cook the cornmeal in it. Add the meat finely chopped and the seasonings. Pack in granite bread tins. Cut into slices and fry.

Potato Border.

Six potatoes, three eggs, one table spoonful of butter, cup of salt, half a cupful of boiling milk. Pare, boil and mash the potatoes. When fine and light add the butter, salt and pepper and two well beaten eggs. Butter the border mold and pack the potato in it. Let this stand on the kitchen table ten minutes; then turn out on a dish and brush over with one well beaten egg brown in the oven.

Maple Fudge.

One pound maple sugar and one cupful milk. Bring to a boil and add a tablespoonful of butter. Cook until it becomes brittle when tested in cold water. Remove from the fire, stir vigorously until it begins to granulate around the edge of the kettle and then pour into a buttered pan.

STOCKBROKERS OF PARIS.

When They Fail They Are Invariably Treated as Criminals.

An agent de change (Paris stockbroker) can under the rule of the code of commerce never be adjudged bankrupt pure and simple, his insolvency always involving more or less criminal responsibility. In the absence of fraud the penalty is hard labor for a term, but in case of fraud the punishment is no less than hard labor for life.

The public, however, never suffers from the insolvency of an agent de change, because his liabilities, no matter what they amount to, are always taken care of and liquidated in full by the other members of the corporation, who contribute obligatorily each year to a sort of insurance fund or reserve for this purpose. Besides, each of them must before being appointed make a deposit of 250,000 or 500,000 francs at the treasury, which allows them an interest of 2 1/2 per cent.

An agent de change, according to section 87 of the code of commerce, must not transact any commercial or banking business for his own account; he must have no financial interest in any commercial enterprise, whether in his own name or under an assumed name. He cannot even receive payment or settle any account on behalf of his clients. The penalty for the violation of this rule may be a fine of 2,000 francs and eventually the disqualification of the offender.—Exchange.

Wires Near Houses.

The sight of a man trimming a tree suddenly falling to the ground, killed by a shock from an electric wire against which the branches were blown, leads Philip E. Edelman to suggest in the Scientific American that not nearly enough care is taken in stringing high power wires to keep them far away from trees, barns and houses. Mr. Edelman says that every municipality should require high voltage wires to be separated from all neighboring objects by a distance of not less than eight or ten feet.—New York World.

A Rebuke.

"Mary followed Edward," mumbled the high school girl who was trying to fix the sovereigns of England in her mind. "What's that?" spoke up grandma, who had been dozing. "Mary followed Edward." "Then you keep away from Mary. I don't want you to go with them kind. Girls is getting too bold."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Worried.

"That dog of Black's will be the death of me, barking at me every time I pass." "But barking dogs don't bite." "I know, but I'd rather be bitten at once than kept in suspense."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Heard at the Hay Cider.

"A good laugh is sunshine in the home," remarked the proverb dispenser. "Yes," rejoined the hopeless idiot, "but at that it isn't as stable as a horse laugh. What?"—Indianapolis Star.

A Squelcher.

He (feeling his way)—Would you get married if you were I? She—I don't believe I could—if I were you.—Boston Transcript.

Thinking Charity.

If we could realize that, supposing we were all created alike and subject to the same circumstances, we should all make the same mistakes and blunders, our judgment of others would be different. There is no phase of charity so beautiful as thinking charity. If you give all you have to the poor, or show your charity in any other way, it avails nothing so long as you think unkindly and unjustly. Charity hurts no one by word or deed.—J. N. Street.

Formosa's Leading Industry. In spite of all its difficulties the camphor industry is Formosa's chief source of revenue. Over eight million pounds of the drug, valued at nearly three million dollars, are marketed every year. Once the head-hunters are subdued, the annual crop will be much larger and the price to the ultimate consumer much lower than at present.

Take Time to Uproot.

That primitive and animal instincts and impulses still survive and surprise us by their unexpected manifestations does not seem so wonderful, perhaps, when we recall the many thousands of years in which these factors were supremely dominant before the comparatively brief period since man entered upon his modern and civilized stage of life.

Man's Lowest Estate.

Whoever can give us the true psychology of hatred may make possible some escape from its malign and harmful influence. We commonly say that love is positive and hate is negative, but how quickly and easily at times the one turns into the other! While hate dominates us we are at our lowest estate.

Rust-Proof Ironwork.

A simple method of making ironwork proof against rust is to heat it until it is almost red-hot, and then crush it over with linseed oil. This makes a varnish which, unlike ordinary paint or enamel, does not chip off.

Got His Errands Mixed?

Dolly—"Mrs. Bronson has divorced her husband on account of his failure to understand the needs of family life." Dolly—"How so?" Dolly—"He used to go out after coffee and come home with the milk."—Town Topics.

Daily Thought.

Seize the minutes as they pass; the woof of life is thought; warm up the colors, let them glow by fire or fancy thought. Live to some purpose, make thy life a gift of use to thee—a joy, a good, a golden hope, a heavenly array.—S. T. Coleridge.

Busy Individual. An old man in the Potato Hill neighborhood is quoted as saying: "All I have to do now is to pull sheets off the calendar pad; I have all day to pull off the Thursday sheet, and make the pad read Friday, but sometimes I get three or four days behind. After I get the sheet on the pad changed, it is time to look for my glasses, which are usually lost. You may think old people have little to do, but they are really quite busy."—Kansas City Star.

Put Fear Aside.

To face life bravely is not only best in theory, but it is also best in practice. The great mass of our fears are only illusions, which needlessly take possession of our daily life and harass our peace of mind. When boldly faced and challenged, they shrink and disappear as unrealities, figments of the imagination.—Christian Register.

Brother Williams Gives Up.

"I done wore out three foots of graveyard rabbit in de hopes of good luck comin' my way," said Brother Williams, "an' I des 'bout come ter de conclusion dat de only way ter git dar is ter go ter work fer yo' livin'."—Atlanta Constitution.

GETTYSBURG RAISES A PERTINENT QUESTION. When a neighbor tells us that he has recovered from a serious illness, the first question that naturally arises is, "How long will he keep well?" Temporary relief is one thing, but a lasting cure is altogether different. There is nothing temporary about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills as the following Gettysburg evidence proves beyond a doubt.

Mrs. J. Menchey, 46 Breckenridge St., Gettysburg, says: "Since I used and publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago I have had no further need of a kidney medicine. I never enjoyed very good health and when kidney complaint came on, it caused me much distress. I had pains in my back and frequently had dizzy spells and chills. When a friend told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at the People's Drug Store. This remedy acted promptly and before long I was in good health."

A Wild West Girl Abroad

By DELIA BREWERTON

Helen Gorton was a ranch girl. She was born on her father's ranch and lived on it till she was fourteen years of age, then was sent east to school. She was no great student, not because it was hard for her to learn, but because she was pining for the wild life of the west.

At eighteen she returned to her home and resumed her former habits. She was an excellent shot and rider and could stand any amount of exposure. By a campfire under a tree she slept more comfortably than in a bed.

Helen was obstinate. When she was twenty and announced to her father that she was going to Europe to visit those countries of which she had heard so much he knew that it would be useless to attempt to stop her.

When Helen departed she was escorted to a railroad station some twenty miles distant from her home by a dozen or more cowboys, each one of whom would have attacked a regiment of wildcats to win a smile from her. When the train moved off they were drawn up in line beside the track on horseback and fired a salute from their revolvers, which she returned from one she carried slung to her waist under the skirt of her dress.

Helen first saw the old world in the Pillars of Hercules, two mountains, one on either side of the strait of Gibraltar, and landed not many miles from the base of Vesuvius. When a month had passed she had not yet left Naples. She made acquaintances rapidly, but so unconventional were her ways in that land of conventionality for women that members of her own sex, even though they understood her and looked upon her as being a thoroughly good girl, did not dare countenance her.

This troubled her. Why it was that innumerable men were markedly attentive to her and few women seemed to care to be intimate with her she could not understand. One elderly American lady who realized her innocence endeavored to caution her by telling her that in a land full of criminals it was not safe to go about alone. Helen did not know what fear was and, misunderstanding the purport of the caution, continued to go about without a chaperon.

But one day her eyes were opened very suddenly and very wide. While visiting Pompeii with a party she overheard an Italian prince make disparaging remarks about "that American girl," it being plain that he referred to her. She was not only wounded in spirit, but indignant, the former feeling giving place to the latter. She had once confronted a grizzly bear, which, for reasons best known to itself, retreated on sight, but had been brought down by a ball from her rifle. She did not regard Prince Leonardo di Giuda as formidable as the grizzly, and she was not sufficiently versed in foreign ways to know that it was not considered a lady's part to protect her good name by a man's methods.

Helen concealed the fact that she had overheard the slurring remark and finished her visit to Pompeii without any one knowing that she was hot with indignation. On the way back to Naples she asked one of the gentlemen of the party, an Italian, what he would do to a man who had spoken contemptuously of a woman he loved and respected. He replied that he would call the man out under the code duello.

The next morning Di Giuda received a note written in a feminine hand and signed "H. G.," asking him to meet her in a certain retired spot that she named on the outskirts of Naples that night at 11 o'clock. Without the signed initials Di Giuda would have looked upon the note as a trap to enable some one to rob him. He was not sure the note was genuine; but, with his opinion of Helen Gorton, he thought it very probable it was. He decided to grant the interview.

At the hour named, well armed to guard against treachery, he drove up in a carriage to the appointed place and, alighting, walked into a field dimly lighted. No one was near, and, realizing the character of many of the lower grade of people of Naples, he kept his hand on his revolver. Suddenly a figure stepped out from behind a bush and, throwing back a cloak, revealed a woman.

"Signorina Gorton?" exclaimed Di Giuda.

"I am."

"I assure you I feel highly honored at your request to meet you. What can I do for you?"

"Sign this paper."

She handed him a paper and produced a light from under her cloak by which he read it. It was an acknowledgment that he was beneath contempt to have attacked a woman's reputation without cause.

"I will not sign that," he said.

"Very well," replied Helen, stepping from him some ten paces; "you may draw. I will not shoot you down like a dog."

The man attempted to argue, but a bullet grazing his cheek admonished him that the case was serious. He would gain nothing by fighting a woman. He chose the lesser of two evils—he signed.

What use Helen made of the paper is not known, but there was a sudden revulsion in her favor. She was thereafter accepted by her own sex and courted by men. When she returned to America she married a ranchman.

CROWN GALL AND HAIRY ROOT

Rules by Which These Diseases May Be Reduced to a Minimum.

[Prepared by M. T. Cook, plant pathologist, New Jersey experiment station.]

That crown gall and hairy root are serious diseases cannot be doubted. That they may be much more serious in some localities than others and upon some plants than on others is equally true. Heavy applications of fertilizer tend to reduce the injurious effects on many varieties, but it would be more profitable for the grower to feed healthy plants than diseased plants.

The great difference of opinion concerning these diseases expressed by various workers in the past can be readily explained by our increasing knowledge of the subject. It is very generally conceded that the distribution of these diseases is largely due to nursery stock; that cane fruits, especially red raspberries, are notorious carriers of these diseases, and that certain varieties of apple, such as Wealthy, Yellow Transparent, Wolf River, Ben Davis and Northern Spy, are especially susceptible. Certain varieties of grapes and berries are also more susceptible than others.

These diseases are so widely distributed that their eradication is practically impossible, but they can be very greatly reduced. The buyer of a tree is entitled to a healthy tree, and no fruit grower can afford to set inferior or diseased plants. The inspection laws in the different states are becoming more and more strict every year with stock likely to carry these diseases. By observing the following rules these diseases can be reduced to a minimum:

Nurserymen should—

- First—Grow their stock on ground as nearly free from these diseases as possible. Never use ground which has recently been set with cane fruits.
- Second—Avoid injuring the young trees by cultivation.
- Third—Use the best grade, healthy seedlings for budding and grafting.
- Fourth—Use scions and buds from trees known to be absolutely healthy. The roots, trunk and branches of trees from which the scions are cut should be free from all forms of the disease.
- Fifth—When root gall is prevalent budding is much to be preferred to root grafting, especially with susceptible varieties such as Wealthy.
- Sixth—If root grafting is practiced the following precautions should be taken:
  - Make close fitting grafts, leaving no exposed cut surfaces.
  - Wrap each graft well with soft waxed cloth.
  - Avoid wrapping with waxed string or raffia.
  - Store root grafts in clean moist sand at temperatures above 32 degrees, but not to exceed 35 to 40 degrees.
  - Plant as early in spring as soil conditions permit.
  - Handle grafts carefully in planting so as not to make any wounds upon the roots or disturb the callous formation upon the cut surfaces of scion and stock.
  - Avoid injury to plants in subsequent cultivation.
- Seventh—Propagate by budding so far as possible the few varieties most susceptible to crown gall and hairy root.
- Eighth—Avoid heavy, wet soils.
- Ninth—Burn all diseased plants. Do not prune the evidently diseased parts and market the stock. The disease may have penetrated farther than you can determine.
- Tenth—The fruit grower should—
  - First—Refuse all diseased stock. His time, land and fertilizer are too valuable for him to gamble with diseased plants of any kind.
  - Second—Set the plants on land as free as possible from the disease. Avoid land that has been used for cane fruits.
  - Third—Never use cane fruits as inter row crops.
  - Fourth—Avoid injuring the trees by cultivation so far as is possible.
  - Fifth—Keep trees as free from borers and similar pests as possible, and paint the wounds made in removing borers with white lead paint or coal tar.
  - Sixth—Rotate old orchard and berry lands to grains, potatoes or similar crops if possible.

Indefinite.
